THE TWENTY-SECOND OF FEBRUARY. This an niver ary of the birth day of George Washington will be appropriately celebrated by our citizens. The recognition of this anniversary as a national nati-to-day. holiday will tend more to preserve the bonds of our Union, and to banish fierce sectional hatred from our land, than all the fervid eloquence of the most popular orators in our midst. It will serve periodically not only to remind the people of "the power that has made and preserved us a nation," but to renew the patriotism of the old men and to place prominently before the youth of our country the bright examplar of patriotic enthusiasm, whose indomitable zeal and wise counsel guided the destinies of the nation in the hours of its darkest peril. So long as Independence day and Washington's birth day are generally observed as national holidays throughout the country, the freedom of the people will not be lost, and, though the glory of our institutions may for a time be dimmed, the reminiscences which these days will always bring to the hearts of Americans will preserve them from ultimate decay.

We hope, and we believe it is intended, that this day shall always hereafter be observed by onr citizens as a national festival, next only to the Fourth

THE ACADEMICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE UNIVER-SITY OF LOUISVILLE.—The city of Louisville in its integral and in its deferent al capacity feels, or should feel, the deepest interest in whatever pertains to the best of its institutions-the Louisville College. It is perbaps not known that this college, free as it is, has given to society its fair modicum of inteliectual worth and cultivation. It is the duty as it ought to be the pleasure of every intelligent citi- patch received last night announces the destruction zen of Louisville to witness the effects of the tnte- by fire of five steamboats at Algiers, opposite New lage of those young men for whose education they

It is not for us to determine how large the audience shall be; but if it is commensurate with what we know of the entertainment to be offered, the Masonic Temple will be thronged to its utmost capacity.

DISTRESSING CALAMITY - CATHOLIC FEMALE ACADEMY AND CHURCH DESTROYED .- We are pained to learn that, on Saturday morning about 4 o'clock, the Loretto Female Academy, situated on the line of the railroad between New Haven and Lebanon, and about twelve miles from the latter place, was destroyed by fire, together with the church, the clothing of the Sisters and scholars, and the furniture. In fact, nothing was saved. Happening so early in the morning, it is strange that no lives were lost, but we are happy to state all escaped without personal injury. The loss will not fall short of $30,000, with no insurance. Besides this, one of the most valuable libraries in the State was destroy ed, some of the volumes of which cannot be replaced perhaps. The fire was purely accidental.

We are requested to say that any articles of ladies' underwear or bedding left at Messrs. Webb & Levering's, Mesers. Slevin & Cain's, or Bessrs. J. B. McIlvain & Son's, will be thankfully received on behalf of the Sisters. We hope our citizens will sleighing very fine, and it was taken advantage of respond liberally to this coll and sustain the high reputation of our city for its benevolence to the distressed and nafortunate.

THE LAW SCHOOL CELEBRATION -In accordance with custom, one of the students of the Law School. will deliver a public address. The exercises of the will take place to-night, in the South Hall of the Masonic Temple. Mr. Chas. D. Armstrong, of Jefferson county, a young gentleman of promising talents has been selected to deliver the address. The RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

There is no perceptible change to notice in the iver. It is falling at Cincinnati, but the rise in the Kentucky keeps it at a stand here. The river was closed above and below Wheeling on Friday. So we learn from Capt. Norton, who came through ov railroad on Friday night. Boats from below report the ice very heavy in the Missi sippi, and there is no doubt that at ove Caro navigation is now suspended. Boats from above report the R. F. Sass at Captina, J. B. Ford at the foot of Blanney, Melnotie at Coalport, Henry Graff at Harmar, all in safe haroors. The Messenger was in a somewhat perilous Judge Brent, of St. Louis, has given a decision in the collision case of the steamers George Albree and and White Bluff, near Cairo. The White Bluff was sunk and lost. She was from Cincinnati bound for Arkansas river. Her owners brought suit, valuing the boat at $12,000, and also claimed a considerable amount on the freight list. The court decided that both boats were in fault, and ordered the damage to be divided.

The John Rame .- This new steamer has postpor ed her departure till to-morrow. She made a trial trip on Saturday, and down stream made seventeen miles in an hour. There was a large party of ladies and gentlemen and the Raine's band of music on board, and dancing was kept up throughout the trip.

The Republic .- This tine large steamer will leave for New Orleans this evening. She is a splendid tout. Capt. T. Jeff. Stewart and Capt. Charles F. Leynolds are two officers well known on the river. It tact, energy, and care they have no superiors, while their uniform courtesy and attention to passengers makes every one feel at home. The Republic leserves a large trip.

The Uncle Sam .- This mammoth steamer arrived from New Orleans yesterday. We thank her clerks, Messrs. James B. Russell and Henry McDougal, for favors. A friend of ours who came up on her informs us that the Sam keeps an excellent table. She will leave for New Orleans to-morrow.

The E. II. Fairchild passed Memphis on Saturday light and will arrive to morrow.

The Sctoto No. 2.-This fast steamer, commanded by Capt. Ballard, with Capt. Dancan as clerk, will leave for Handerson this evening.

INFORMATION WANTED .- A correspondent in Indiana informs us, under date of February, that on the 25th of December last a Scotchman, named Thomas Megaw, was found dead in his house, and it is supposed was murdered. He also states that deceased has a sister residing in this city, whose husband is a merchant, and has a father and two sisters in Scotland. Megaw had been residing there but a short time, owned forty acres of land and a good deal of live stock, and had also a considerable amount of money. Our correspondent will give any information desired in regard to the deceased. The relatives of Megaw can obtain the letter by calling at our office, which gives the place of his late

MILITARY PARADE -The three volunteer companies will celebrate this day by a grand parade. That fine corps, the Marion Rifles, will be presented by the ladies with a banner, and the Citizens' and the Falls City Gnards will give eclat to the occasion by their presence. The presentation will take place at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Sedgewick, on Floyd street, near Green. Miss Sedgewick has been selected by the ladies to present it, and Capt. Woodruff, of the Rifles, will receive it. After the presentation and parade, the Rifles will dine at the Louisville Hotel and the Falls City

Guards at the Galt House. Orleans. Among the boats burnt is stated to be the James Montgomery. This was doubtless a boat running in the Southern trade, and not the Louis believe attached and under the shcriff's control. Sherman was owned South and had been running in Red river. The Moutauk was owned in St. Louis. We presume none of the boats had any freight.

MEMPIUS FIREMEN ON A STRIKE .- We learn from the Memphis Avalanche that the fire companies of that city have closed their engine houses and the members have retired from active service for the present. Placards were displayed upon the doors of some of the houses, warning citizens that the companies would respond to no alarm of fire until the streets "dried up," or until the recorder reconsidered his opinion in fining certain firemen on Saturday for hauling their apparatus on the side-walks. The firemen allege that the streets are in so muddy a condition that they cannot pull the engines.

CELEBRATION To-NIGHT. - The Young Men's Catholic Literary Association will celebrate to-day by an address this evening at the Mozart Hali, delivered by a member of the association.

Wm. L. Kelly, E-q., a young gentleman of fine literary taste and attainments, will deliver the address. The public are cordially invited to attend. Doors to be opened at 7 o'clock P. M.

THE WEATHER .- For the information of our readers abroad, we state that we had a regular snow storm yesterday, the first of the season. The ground is now covered to the depth of five inches, making last night. The thermometer yesterday at noon indicated 31 degrees, and last night at midnight it

A CALAMITY AT ST. LOUIS.-A brief dispatch in the Evening Bulletin of Saturday announced the destruction of the Pacific Ilotel at St. Louis and the loss of many lives. We have received, through the politeness of Mr. B. F. Guthrie, of the firm of Smich, Gathrie, & Co., and Mr. Labeau, of the Louisville Hotel, an extra of the St. Louis Herald. which gives the following details of the calamity:

PACIFIC HOTEL IN RUINS - FIFTY OR SIXTY LIVES LOST
One of the most heart-rending calamities that we have ever had occasion to record, occurred this merning about 3 o'clock — Its bureing of the Pacific Hosel, on Seventh street, kept by Mr. Strader, by which a large number of human beings, who retired last night full of joyous hope and expectation, are now in the Spirit Land, and the only vestige of their existence is left in the charred, crisped and blackened bodies, casting a pill of gloom over this community that time will not be able to shake off.

It appears that the entire back part of the hotel was of wood, that caught instantly and spread with the rapidity of thought, the draught carrying the entire mass of the firms right through the entire building; enveloping the entire structure in one solid body of flames.

The reason engines "Desire Moore" and the carrying the carryin

The steam engines "Davis Moore" and "George Cuyler" were on hand prompily, to whom great credit is due, and but for whose services the entire block must have gone. The Independent Boys were on hand, representing the Central, St. Houis, Missouri, Laclede, and Promix, doing good service—that is as they always do—doing all they could.

The fire is supposed to have canght in — Jones's drug-store. Mr. Strader, the lessee of the house, was awakened by the howling of his faithful dug, at the door of his sleeping apartment, to whom he is undoubtedly indebted for his life. Mr. S. finformed us that there were about 100 persons sleeping in the house; that he jumped out of bed and went round to every room and awakened the inmates; then went every room and awakened the immates; then went back for his family, and by great exertion succeeded in saving them all; his sister-in-law was miraculouslly saved—losing $300 which she had taken out of her trunk and was holding in her hand, but dropped it in her efforts to escape. It is almost impossible to ascertain the full particulars at this moment; and, in fact, eternity will alone reveal the death struggles of the unfortunate victims of this terrible disaster. Sr. Louis, Feb. 20.
The burning of the Pacific Hotel proves a much more terrible calamity than reported this morning About one hundred persons were in the house, forty About one hundred persons were in the house, forty or fifty of whom were missing. The following persons are known to be killed, viz: Bruce McNitt, Burkheart Wurst, Paul Sterrill, Mrs. Jenny Jones and child, of St. Louis; Johnson, of Chicago; Henry H. Rochester and T. Hart Strong, of Rochester, M. N; Wm. S. Taylor, Geo. Crane, Miss Jones, residence unknown; Chas. Davis and Wm. Cunningham, of Terre Haute and Alton railway; Miss Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard. Nine persons (in one room), names unknown, and a negro boy were seriously miured. The fire caught in a drag store unously injured. The fire caught in a drug store under the hotel. The flames spread so rapidly that the stairways were enveloped before the inmates could be aroused. All egress was entirely out off except the windows, and many leaped three stories and were horribly mangled or inctantly killed. Many were unable even to reach the windows. Several hode as one supposed to be buried in the ruins. eral bod es are supposed to be buried in the ruins, and hundreds of excited men are energetically engaged in removing the rubbish. The wounded were dicated 31 degrees, and last night at midnight it stood at 14.

LATER FOREIGN NEWS.— The steamship Africa arrived at New York yesterday and her news is given the hospital, where their injuries were immediately attended to. Several of the wounded cannot possibly recover. Loss $50,000.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION OF A GAS PIPE IN A CHURCH. - Buthlings Daninged - Sever is Persons Wounded .- We copy the following for L. the Cincin-

Wounded.—We copy the following from the Cincinnati Gazette of yesterday:

About seven o'clock last evening the vicinity of Sixth, Vine, and Race streets was startled by a most terrific explosion, which shook the bail-lings in the neighborhood as though the shows of an earthquake had passed under the city. The noise of the explosion was heard for several squares in every direction, whilst the rattling of the glass in the window of the houses immediately adjoining and opposite the scene of the explosion creater the greatest alarm. To add to the excitement, the fire bell on the Tower rung out an alarm, which added greater the Tower rung out an alarm, which added greater terror, and in an instant the street, were filled with people.

In cause of the explosion and evolve cent was soon ascertained. It seems that when the sextou of the Metaodist Protestant Church opened the doors of the basement for the purpose of preparing for the evening meeting, he found that the lover hall was filled with gas, and having procured a light, proceeded, with two or three others, to ascertain the point at which it was leaking. Mr. Charles Meets, and two other gentlemen, with the sexton, opened the door of the closet in the hall, near the outer door, and putting the light to examine the metre. point at which it was leaking. Mr. Charles Meets, and fivo other gentlemen, with the sexton, opened the door of the closet in the hall, ear the outer door, and putting the light to examine the metre, the gas was set on fiee, and bursed brightly. Water was immediately brought, and the flunes extinguished, but a minute after it was discovered that a blaze proceeded from the floor, where the pipe led from the metre to the various rooms in the building. The discovery had hardly been made by the persons stanoing by, before the explosion of the gas pipe took place, and in an instant the lower part of the church was a mass of rain.

In the basement of the building the floors were completely torn up and thrown in a hear, of ruins. The lath and plaster from the ceilings and sides were torn off and the windows of every from plass, sash, and all blown out. The doors was very great. Almost the entire flooring was the part extremed about; the seats were smashed as by the lightning's stroke; doors and word as those out; the supporting posts forn down; he stow and pipe scattered; the ceilings rent in a hundred places. In the upper ceiling, large holes very made by patious of the flooring and seats benefit to be not thrust up by the force of the explosion. The general veck of almost the entire lecture room reseted the ever.

A large portion of the body of the chart, in the second story is in the same railed condition. About one-fourth of the flooring had been forn up and scattered about, and full one-fourth of the ears had been removed from their places, and leather san shed, or greatly damaged. The continue of the ears had been removed from their places, and leather san shed, or greatly damaged. downward, story after story, in spite of the efforts of the fire department.

The fire commenced at 6.30, only ten minutes after one of the proprietors had left the building, as we were informed by one of the fireneet. Hose Company No. 20 arrived almost immediately, and was shortly followed by Engine No. 5. Other companies were soon on the ground, more indeed than could find room to operate on the building. Their efforts were at first abortive. Some of the hydrauts were frozen, and the water in the engines could only be prevented from freezing by the introduction of hot water, heated in immense candidons by means of londress. The fire reached its height at abort tea o'clock, when the building aljoining was also is flames.

THE MILITARY-The Flag Presentation to the Marion Rifles .- The great feature of attraction in the celebration t -lay was the presentation by the ladies of a flag to the Marion Ritles. That company, accompanied by the Citizen Guards and the Falls City Guards, all in full parade uniform and having two lands of mulic, marched to the residence of Mrs. Sedgwick, on Floyd streat, where the presentation took place. An immense assemblage had gathered, among them many ladies, til oking up the enthe square, a dit was with difficulty the military force their way to the residence, where they formed, the Rifles occuping the center, facing the residence, flanked on the right by the Falls City Guards and on the left by the Citizen Guarda. The companies made a splendid appearance. After the performance of a liece by one of the bands, Capt. Woodruff, with the ensign of his company, advanced, and Miss Sedgwick, accompanied by Mr. Alex. Evans and a gentleman bearing the banner, met them. Mr. Evans then addressed Capt. Woodruff as fol-

I hold a delegated power. The lady donors have requested me to present to your company this elegant flag; before this imposing scene that surrounds me, this gay assemblage, this military display, and wave, have I come to discharge this delegated duty. As one born upon the roil I feel a double pride in presenting a gift from the rative fair to the native brave. We all should feel a glow of pride warming our bearts when we reflect that our destiny has been cart in this treat translation. cast in this broad republic, whose eastern and west-ern aboves are washed by the two majestic oceans of the world, who e bosom contains the most magnificent lakes and rivers upon the globe, whose soil is varied in the extreme, prolific in luxury and comfort, this land of elequence and song, science and art, merce and arms

The profession of arms in all ages has been deemed an honorable one, and the most inspiring of all tame is that produced by brilliant military exploits. Some nations are warlike, others cultivate the area of peace; though peaceably dispoted, we are essentially warlike. It should be the peculiar aim of our country to foster and sustain the citizen soldiery, to etkind le a military ardor and emulation throughout our extension for "minions, not only by academies but our extensive 'minions, not only by academies but independent companies and annual encomponents; the youth of our country should be bred to arms, at least it should from a part of their education. One West Pol. t Academy, of which we are justly prind for id a culy a limited number of scientific afti cers for our national army. This little recers for our national army. This little regularization in time of war is the standard record will not of them anders gather, and, if the proper within a containing and a moment's warning, in time of war, to take the field, and, instead of goog to a camp of instruction, there to remain inactive for several months, they would be prepared at the to lead a cavalry charge, a rifle skirmish, or point the trunders of the deadly artillery. Many nation have been celebrated for some especial superiority in the art of war, some quality in which they have excelled; the Scythiau arrow has come down to us through a leng corridor of buried centuries, barbed with sharpness, swift as the wind, and unerring in its aim; at the siege of Troy the Grecian swerd, is the hands of Ajax, Achilles, and other herces, flashed with such brightness that its beams have been reflected, in the mirror of history, to the present day; though the Macedonian phalanx has passed out of existence its fame still survives; the Proternan bands and the legious of Rome scattered destruction in their path, and have therefore written their names indellibly mouthe page of time; the ancent Moors and the modern Mamelukes have been considered the finest horseauen in the world, the charge of the French cavalry, the Imperial Guard, when the protection is the finest horseauen in the world, the charge of the French cavalry, the Imperial Guard, when the first the finest horseauen in the world, the charge of the French cavalry, the Imperial Guard, when the first the English beyone thas left tore tot namen beings; the English bayonet has left its neath upon every field in Europe, when its bur-nished tur-ace flished in the face of an enemy; the lance and claymore of Scotland have been celebrated is song by the varied genius of Scott:

theard the lancer's shivering crash As when the whirlwind rends the ash, I heard the broadsword's deadly clang As if an hundred anvils rang.

And last, though not least, comes in for its share of renown the Irish shillalah. The citizens of our own gallaut State are famous for the matchless aim they take with the rifle; indeed the whole West shares in this honor; and although the artillery of our national ermy is justly denominated the right arm of the service, yet neither infantry, cavalry, her artillery has wen a separate distinction equal to the ancient renown of the Macedonian Phalanx. The reason is it is not the genius of our Gevernment to maintain it is not the genius of our Gevernment to maintain an overgrown standing army. We are apart from the world, peace is our policy, the wars of our Republic are the people's wars, the battles of our country greatly belong to her citizen soldiery; in the patriotism and courage of her children a Republic field her surest defence, her strongest battlements; not but what our gallant regulars, officers and men, have done their duty wherever their sabres have ducted upon a battle field, wherever their artillery has poured its thunder into the ranks of an enemy. has poured its thunder into the ranks of an enemy they forcish science and courage, but their numbers are too small in an extended war; added to this science and courage, our citizen soldiers thrown in, a complete storm, a perfect tornado of furious energy, mixed in with a spirit that never gives up, and which nerves them on the field, though vanquished, to shout with their last expiring breath, a little more grape. Copt. Bragg! This is one distinction the American arms have won, and it stands out boldly, in fact it stands entirely outside of all military science; the wild valor they evidence and the pell mell article of fighting, whether in brigades, regiments. ence; the wild valor they evidence and the pell mell style of fighting, whether in brigades, regiments, companies, platoous, sections, or on their own hook, single-handed in a squad by themselves, enable them to pitch in like thunder and lightning, as if the victory depended on each separate arm, and Uncle Som had nothing to do but to stand by and look on. Sir, this is a glorious distinction—this dauntless valor, inspired by a love of country, this wild enthusiasm or a sold and local him at last to a spendid tramand.

This day is one of renown. Pausing here a moment and passing our eye, with the swiftness of thought, over the ages that now slumber with the past, we call rapidly to our memory the names of those whose pathways are still marked with their deed, science and art sparkle with their names, literature glitters from one century to another, the war-like firmament is studded with stars of the first unagonitude; but in the clorious galaxy of names that magnitude; but in the glorious galaxy of names that adera the museum of the past, there is but one whose actions have gained universal approbation. In the whole range of history, from the earliest period to the present day, we seek in vain for this great man's counterpart-no country has produced his like. You may examine the minds that have govlike. You may examine the minds that have governed the world and now blaze in song and story, communing with the Persian Cyvns, let the Carthagenian General fall into the vooks, Alexarder of Macedon, the imperial Casars, the Swedish Charles, Clademagne, Marlbotough of English, Alfred, and Frederick the Great, and all others who have any professions to greatness, not forgetting the iniliant military genius that spring, Phobus-like, from the Island of Corrice, the recowned Napoleon. Gaze at trem all, and in no one of them will you find the same combination that so brightly ad uns the characteristics. same combination that so brightly ad was the character of George Washington; in this search, history will be beggared, heroes bankropt. God made but one such man. He made him for the times, and no-

Proud as we are of Washi gion and of our loved C lumbin, our bearts swell with admiration when the course of Mantalay is breathed. Since her starsportful it the constellation of the Union, her some hime of ranged her glory in the Senate and the field; have selvanced her glory in the Senate and the field; her noted house combats have won the appliance one cistor States; her field exploits have added lustre to our country's arms. Thus we have a double our ister states; her field exploits have added ustre to our country's arms. Thus we have a double pride, State and Federal; indeed this State pride is the brightest hisk that binds us to our loved confederation. We are nearly of the combination and proud of each other. Under this hanner it may be that you will be called to sust in this double honor; and, sir, we feel, we know that you will be true to both; we know that you and your gall in componious, some of whom have shored the total of the field with yourself, will hear your colors through the hail of war with courage and renown, and that you will rither add to than tear a single leaf from the wreath that adorns Kenticeky's how.

But, while I tell how proud we are of our State, our warriors, and our statesmen. I have told but half the tale. Kentineky's chivalrous arms almost pale before the spinkling beauty of her daughters; heroic deeds and intellectual triumphs would lose their noblest charms if the victors received not their celestial smiles; dark indeed would our pathway in life be were is not orightened and lit by the smiles of woman—such somes as can come from the bightened dark indeed doughters, of the lind of chivary beauty, and such sures as can come from the bright eyed daughters of the land of chivairy, beauty, and

All nations have their banners; the tri-colored flag of France, the Lior of England, the Eagles of Russia, the Turkish Crescent, these are among the most distinguished; all Latious have their banners. most distinguished; all hatious have their banners. But, sir, there is a banner, that belongs to ro one nation on the globe; no single kingdom claims its spotless folds; no temporal principality owns it priceless beauty; it plays not in the breeze above any one nation's battle-ship; no hostile armies bear it in their ranks to fields of death and carnage; no maitial music heralds it along; all Christian nations bow before it—the world-wide banner of the Cross, and, although during the time of the crusades the Crescent and the Cross met in deadly conflict, yet it is the lanner of peace. Peace on each, and good wall to man. This is the most distinguished banner in the universe—the banner of Heaven. Nearly rine-teen centuries ago the emblem of this banner was presented to man in the crucifixion of the Lion of the Tribe of Judah; since then its folds have waved the Tribe of Judah; since then its folds have waved through sunshire and through storm, at d, although it is as spotless as the fleece of the unweaned lamb, and white as the driven snow, it has been dyed in the blood of many martyrs. By their death they scaled their faith in its inexpressible beauties. The Roman Pontiffs have upheld the glory of this banuer, and claimed as their own, but still it belongs not to any temporal government; countless thousands of the children of men have bowed unbidden before its resplendent lustre; it leads not man to before its resplendent lustre; it leads not man to earthly victories, stained with crime and bathed in the blood of his fellow-man; it leads the soul to an immortal triumph, to a celestial kirgdom—it leads the soul from earth to heaven.

All nations have their banners; there, sir, is ours. Above its silken folds is perched the bird of Jove, the emblem of the free. More than eighty years All nations have their banners; there, sir, is ours. Above its silken folds is perched the bird of Jove, the enablem of the free. More than eighty years ago the original of this beautiful banner was not in existence; our republic had not assumed a form or a rink among the powers of the world; no navy then techeck the bragging pride, the laughty bearing of the self-styled mistress of the orear; no stripes and stars to lear our fame and herald our existence to nations that knew us not. Since this emblem was unfurfed to the battle and the breeze, the nations of the earth have looked unear; and they know that we are here. It has spirkled in the sun-bright regions of the footh, it has flusted over the frozen realms of the extreme north, it waved in pitile at Petry's naval triumph, it kissed the breeze with Harrison in his glorious victories, it won new lustre when at New Orleans Old Hickory, with his western troops, withered the laurels of the veterans of Eurape; its stars shone brighter upon the battle field of Buena Vista, and the veteran Scott covered it with fire like glory in his triumphant march to the gates of the city of the Montezumas. Such are a with fire like glory in his triumphant march to the gates of the city of the Montezumas. Such are a few of the hallowed and glorious scenes through which our national fleg has passed—sacred in memory, brilliant in history, lasting as time itself. Those stripes and stars now wave wherever the winds of heaven blow. The folds of this flag, so dear to the heart of an American sailor wherever unfurled, command the respect of Kingdoms and States, week and strong; they look upon it as an emblem of justice and liberty. Beneath its folds the American soldier and sailor and citizen, native and unturalized, are secure from oppression. Where is the true American, adopted or native, but what loves this flag? The brightest pages of our country's history are blaroued there. Before your mind you have a thousand star creamples to imitate. Should you be thousand star countles to initiate. Should you be called into active service, your country's farmer glory beckous you to the path of honor, your desire to wreathe a name will nerve you to your duty, and the remembrance of those who gave you this stan-dard will make soldiers of you all.

dard will make soldiers of you all.

Take this banner with its spotless stripes and stainless stars; the farest of the far place it in the hands of the brave; and, should your country's bugle call you to quell internal rebellion and violence or to face an invading foe, may you never stain it with dishonor or disgrace; though it be riddled by the bullets of the enemy and soiled by the blood and dust of the battle field, let no other stain rest upon its beautiful stripes and glittering stars.

Sir. may you never meet a more destructive foe

Sir, may you never meet a more destructive foe than the one which is now before you. Look at this invincible regiment under the command of General Christic the second of Cupid; there is now a shower of darts flying from the quiver of their eyes, and the heart is their only aim. Sir, you are in a perilous position, and it will aim. require the most skillful evolutions to enable you to retreat. You may make advances, but the laws of retreat. You may make advances, but the laws of gallantry will not allow you to retreat. I therefore galantry will not allow you to retreat. It therefore advise you to stand to your arms and die bravely, because none but the brave deserve the fulr; and in this enchanting struggle, though pierced by a bright eye, let me implore you not to faint, because "Faint heart never won fair lady."

Sir, when the Roman matron gave the shield to her son, she told him to come back with or on it. I say to you, never part with your banner with dis-honor; and, before you yield it to an enemy, dye its white strines the color of the red with your hearts' white strines the color of the red with your hearts' blood; and then, when your foe shall point to it as a trophy taken from American arms, your countrymen can say, "Aye, you took it, but before you won it the soldier who guarded it bathed it with his heart's blood." In guarding your banner you stand sentinel to your own and your country's honor. Lose your honor and you have lost everything; lose everything but your honor and you still will be heroes and your countrymen will treasure your names. Your fame and your honor belong not alone to you; your country claims it as her right, as a part of her your country claims it as her right, as a part of her inheritance. Should you be placed in the position, the bright annals of your country's history demand that you shall not soil a single leaf wherein our fathers have written her glory in letters of living light. This costly inheritance, won by toil and cour age and sealed with priceless blood, will act only as age and sealed with priceless blood, will act only as a noble incentive to spur you to your duty, and the double fame and honor devolving upon you, broad as the Union and wide as the globe, will fire your soul with those star virtues that give a soldier character, courage, justice, mercy, and humanity.

CAPT. WOODRUFF'S REPLY.

The duty has devolved on me, sir, as the Com-mandant of the "Marion Refles," of expressing their gratitude through you to the ladies who have been pleased to make them the recipients of this day's honor, by entrussing to their case and protection this honor, by entrusting to their care and protection this glorious cm.l.cm of our national existence. Believe me, sir, that word are inadequate to portray the feelings that well up in my heart, nor could the poetry of sentiment (were I capable of indulging therein) lend expression in language commensurate to unfold our estimation of those patriotic ladies who come with this memento as an offering of their devotedness to our country by thus endeavoring to upfull a charly lad across of citizen alderry who are the only rehance in time of danger and battle. If elequence could be invoked at charmed objects, I would have but to look upon the surrounding galaxy of bright and beautous faces to woo ining galaxy of tright and beautious faces to woo in-spiration from the Mighry God, that from his In-perial throne he would send me words to teach the immost recesses of the heartto bring forth its hidden feeling in utterance thrilling through every boson whose ears drank in the majesty of voice and action that would join with me in speaking the humble gratitude of our hearts.

You refer, sir, to the past as unlocked to view through the pages of hi tory to deduce events commemorative of modes of warfare and weapons used by nations erec great on the face of the earth, but now no more save their treasured deeds recorded on the glowing page of which I speak, a sad memento of departed greatness to warn as of what they were, and remind us of what we may be; yet, sir, I see in those sombre dusty chronicles a scene which you may have overlooked, one replete with graphic tracethose combre dusty chronicles a scene which you may have overly sked, one replete with graphic tracery of incident that stirs up the warm blood and fills the heart with a self-consuming fire that urges imitation of glories won. It informs us that fair and gentle ladies created the champions of the world, that at their instance bold and valuant knights girded on their trusty swords to battle in their cause, with enthusiastic devotion periling life and limb upon the gory field to uphold their honor. Methinks it was on seme such day as this, amid the assembled greatness of a nation, that fearless may knell before It was on some such day as this, and the assembled greatness of a nation, that fearless man knelt before his lady-love to receive a token afterwards borne proudly upon his glittering shied through long campaigns of almost endle s strife. That token, that emblem, thus entrusted to his keeping, become the gniding star of his destiny and served to preserve his truth and fealty through the depraved in the horest processor of fereing accessors of several contents of the horest processors of the serveral serveral serveral to the horest processors of the serveral servera tercourse of foreign excesses engendered by the horror, rapine, and butchery of war. That memento, for, rapine, and butchery of war. That memento, ever present sleeping or waking, was the heritage for which he struggted. Returned from the field of his well-earned fame, decorated with the lanrel and myitle, he placed the evergreen wreaths upon the brow of her he loved, and at her feet surrendered all his glory. But if in mid career he fell by a foeman's steel the tidings, wafted on lightning wings, reached the trusting heart at home to overshadow its bright anticipations of earthly joy in sombre gloom, and, as she shed a tear to his memory, thought brough the solucing balm that he had died as a soldter should, battling to protect the gift she gave and tenenth the shield that had so proudly borne it.

From that day ill now your sex, fair ladies, though gentle as angels of light, and timid as the wild gazelle, have endeavored to instill into manly learns, the tripiciples that they can to deed of valor. wild gazelle, have endeavored to institute manify hearts the principles that urge on to deeds of valor and renown. The present is but an image of the past, and we stand here to day as those of old to receive your badge. This flag, the work of your own hands we accept as a token of your confidence and faith in the integrity of our purpose to bear it where duty and honor call. May we ever deserve the noble of the acceptance of the confidence was acceptance of the confidence of duty and honor call. May we ever deserve the noble gift as soldiers of pace and war, and may we ever be able to pretect you and our country's fair fame. And should the load clarion sound to arms, marshaling hosts to drive an invader back, or right the wrongs we may have endured upon foreign soil, be assured we will respond to our nation' voice and prepare for action. Then midst charging squadrons and sortied columns, where the charge of arms assured we will respond to our, nation' voice and prepare for action. Then midst charging squadrons and seried columns, where the charg of arms and deep thundering rear of artillery wake the elements of heaver, and almost statts the tenant of the grave, there should creep chillingly through the heart a fearful feeling that palsies the stoutest and makes the banker waving o'r us, where our gaze to this banter waving o'r us, where bright stars and broad stripes would smile us into confidence and remind us of our homes and our country's altars, and bring vivid recollections of this day, with your beauteous faces beaming with radiant light from sonls undaunted, that would be the recovery sum for the desporate conflict, and re-radiant light from sons undaulted, that would nerve every aim for the desperate conflict, and resolve us to do or die.

Let me assure you, sir, that I reciprocate your beautiful allusion to this day in a double sense; first as being that on which we have occasion of being here, and secondly as being commemorative of the highly of the father and savior of his country. To birthday of the father and savior of his country him, through the assistance of a kind o'erruling Providence, are we indebted for the form and mat-ter of this glorious hanner. It needs no eulogy of mine to perpetuate his memory; it is ever verdant, teeming with holy affection in the breast of every freeman, "for he was the boon of Providence to the race, his fame eternity, and his residence

"How shall we rank thee upon glory's page, How, more than soldier and just less than sa All thou hast been reflects less tame on thee, For less than all thou hast forborne to be,

Such, sir, is the portraiture by one whom I could never hope to imitate, much less to approach. [Capt. Woodruff here turned to the Ensign of the ltifles, and giving the flag to his charge, said]:

To you, sir, is entrusted the bearing of this prized gif—guard it as you would your sacred honor—never let its silken folds trail in the dust, but ever aloft unfurl it to the breeze, that it may be the hope of the oppressed of every clime as it has proved the glory of our own, the pride of a freeman's land.
Again, fair ladies, accept our humble thanks for this beautiful flag. It was your pleasure to bestow, tis our honor to receive.

Both addresses were very finely delivered. The band then played another tune, and this concluded the ceremony of presentation. The banner is a beautiful one. The material is silk, and the design is that of the flag of our country, with an eagle perched on the top of the staff.

The companies paraded through several streets, eliciting general encomium for their handsome ap pearance. The R fles subsequently dined at the Louisville Hotel and the Falls City Guards at the Galt House.

To-day is very generally observed as a holiday. We noticed that all the wholesale houses on Main street were either wholly or partially closed.

We have already noticed the suicide of Robert Smith in the Norristown (Pa.) jail. He was imprisoned on the charge of murdering his wife. The following is the suicide's last letter to the world:

I am sorry to inform my friends of my sad case I did not murder my wife before God and man. The I did not murder my wife before God and man. The wife I got was the ruin of my soul and body. She drunk and lied and agitated the people against me, and [I] did not know what it was for, so I resolved to die; so farewell mother, sister, brother, and friends. Brother, farewell. God pardon my soul in heaven. I know a man must not [go to trial] without plenty of meney, for they will punish you for very little. Brother, farewell. I hope you will trust in the Lord. trust in the Lord.

ANOTHER CASE OF "CONTEMPT."-W. H. Anderson, one of the Yale College (New Haven) students, under examination emerning the late disturbance resulting in the death of a fireman, was asked if he saw any firearms lying on a table on the right of the trouble. He declined answering because his arswer "might tend to expose him to a criminal prosecution." He was imprisoned for contempt, but his coursel took out a writ of habeas corpus, and he was discharged, Chief Justice Storrs deciding that-

It is the duty of a court, while not allowing the witness to shield himself by a more self-evident subterfuge, to be at the same time scrupulously careful not to require the witness to answer where the court can see that by reason of possible facts (facts of which the court may have no knowledge, but which the court can see to be possibly true), the answer may so expose the wirness.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin. Inscitution for the Deaf and Dumb, Danville, February 19, 1858.

Gentlemen: In your paper of yesterday I notice an article headed the "Benevolent Institutions of Kentucky," in which this institution is presented as "delinquent" in complying with a law of the session of the Legislature of 1855-'6, which required a report to be made to the Auditor of the expenditures of the benevolent institutions of the State. I think it due to this institution and to justice to place the matter, to far as this institution is concerned, in its matter, so far as this institution is concerned, in its proper light.

The cflicers of the institution had no knowledge of the enistence of the law until a few days since. It was a general clause inserted in a bill making an appropriation of a few thousand dollars, for specific purposes, to the Western Lunatic Asylum, and was so headed. It very naturally therefore escaped our

The expenditures of this institution have been The expenditures of this institution have been minutely reported in detail to the Lagi lature. The report has been in the hands of the Legislature, and was ordered to be printed early in December. Our buildings are now completed, and are not exceeded by any in the State for commodionsness and comfort, and are now sufficient and o.en for the reception of all the deaf mutes of the State. We have just completed a first class edifice, for which the Legislature appropriated only seventeen thousand five hundred dollars. We have also furnished it comfertably, and have just purchased and paid for, thirty-six acres of additional ground at the price of one hundred fated twenty five dollars per acre, all without asking any additional appropriation from the State.

tion from the State.

The whole cost of our ground and buillings, consisting of four handsome structures, has been be-tween sixty five and seventy thousand dollars, to-ward which the State has only contributed, by di-rect appropriation for the parpose, the sum of twenty-two thousand dollars, whi'e I have myself contributed for the same over ten thousand dollars. Very respectfully.

contributed for the same over ten thousand dollars.

Very respectfully, J. A. JACOBS,

Principal Ky. Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

P. S. It is unnecessary to state that as soon as known the law has been compiled with. I will add that no public institution anywhere has exceeded this in the economy of its expenditures, and no one has been so light a burden on the public treasury in proportion to the benefits conferred.

PROTESTING BANK NOTES -Some time in November last, after the suspension of specie payments by the banks, Sainuel Harris presented two $5 bills on the Bank of Commicre at their counter, and demanded specie for them. They refused to pay it and the notes were duly protested, and suit being instituted before Justice Mears to recover, he gave judgment against the bank in both casesi. The bank appealed to the court of common pleas, and the case was tried before a jury on Saturday. The bank urged that it was not legally liable to pay the protest ($2 on each note), but the jury rendered a verdict for appellee in both cases, thus affirming the judgments of the magistrate. Motions in arrest of indements were filed, which remains to be disposed cember last, after the suspension of specie payments judgments were filed, which remains to be disposed of. These cases possess considerable interest, for if it be established that a bank is liable to the expenses of a protest and costs of suit on every note issued, for which they refused to pay specie, no bank could afford to remain suspended any length of time. The costs in each of the above two cases will reach, with the protest, some twelve or fifteen dollars.

JEFFERSONVILLE BRANCH BANK.—The directors of the Bank of the State of Indiana held a meeting on Wednesday to consider the expediency of reinstating the Jeffersonville Branch, which was suspended a short time ago for irregularity. The consideration of the sulject was continued to the regular meeting of the board in April. The branch will, probably, be permitted to resume.

TROUBLES NEAR FORT RANDALL .- The St. Louis Republican publishes the following extract from a letter dated Fort Randail, Jan. 28: Our post was thrown into a considerable flarry a

Our post was thrown into a considerable flurry a few days ago, considering its usual quiet.

Two gent-dener fr in Neobrarah Cay, a settlement at the mouth of the L'eau qui cour, reported to cur commanding officer, Maj. H. Day, that the settlers had lately been very much annoyed by the Ponca Indians. They asked immediate assistance from the Post to quell their disturbances, and to protect the lives and property of the whites.

They presented a petition, signed by all the residents of Neobrarah, male and female, stating that they considered their lives and progerty unsafe, unless protection was extended to them by the United States troops.

States troops

It seems that the Poncas have behaved very bad-

It seems that the Poncas have behaved very badly, injuring their property, by committing depredations on the town saw mill, and by wounding their catle, and also demanding food and threatening life. Now, this may be but the elullition of the savage passion of the "young men," not controlable by the "braves" and "chiefs," and it might not have resulted in the scalping of white men and dispolling of whi e women. But it clearly proves that if our Indian frontiers are not protected, the lives and property of our people who have the daring and enterprise to settle on their borders will be continually in jecoardy. jeooard y

If such a petty band as the Poncas, almost under If such a petty hand as the Poncus, almost under gun shot of Fort Randall with its garrison of six companies, and at the very moment too when its principal men are in "council" and smoking the pipe of peace with our government at Washington City, would dare to molest and threaten a settlement of whites, what could be expected were this settlement unprotected by troops. The wild Indians of the plains can be governed only by fear of punishment, let premunent posts be established along our frontiers; let them be so sufficiently manned that frequent expeditions can be made through the country contiguous; let the Indians know that punishment is close at hand, if he commits error, and we will is close at hand, if he commits error, and we will then have no more Grattan massacres or repetitions of the horrors of S, irit Lake.

The Indian would then have no temptation thrown at his feet, and could slaways obtain redress from the nearest military post, if, as is so very often the case, the white man committed the first offence.

Major Day immediately sent a command of three companies of the second infantry, I, D, and II, of the six stationed at this post, to the assistance of the Neobrarah citizens.

Capt. D. Davidson is in command, having utder im Capt. W. M. Galdner and Lieut. W. F. Lee. Our winter has been an extraordinary one. The thermometer has but once run down to — deg. min., and has averaged between z and z through the months of November, December, and January I fear a low -tage of water this season, unless the snow above Fort Pierre has been more propitious for trade and travel next spring than in this region.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Republican write::

Republican writes:

The Mexican minister here, Gen. Don Manuel Robles y Pezuela, has just received highly important dispatches from President Comonfort, who is now on his way to this city. He proposes to submit for the consideration of our Government a plan for quieting the unhappy condition of affoirs in his own country, and averting the impending civil war. He thinks that a proper intermediation of the Washington cabinet would arrest anarchy and restore political, civil, and religious order in Mexico. The exact character of Comonfort's proposition is not yet known here, and great interest will be felt to ascertain the details and probable success. The better tain the details and probable success. The letter sion here seems to be that Santa Anna will be recalled to power.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17, 1858.
Letters from Nicaragua state that the transit route cannot be opened in a less time than four months, even if the contest between the compelitors for the contract be settled at once. But it is stated that arrangements have been completed in New York for establishing the line. Commodore Vanderbilt receives forty thousand dollars a month from the companies connected with the Panama route, merely for withdrawing from competition with them. But it is withdrawing from competition with them. But it is stated that he will relinquish the contract and estab-lish another line of communication by way of the Nicaragnan isthmus.

Nicaragnan isthmus.

If the Yrisarri treaty shall be ratified by Nicaragua we may hope to witness the removal of the blockade of this important route. The objections which have been raised against this treaty are founded upon a misconception of its terms. It does not, as has been alleged, afford protection merely to a private company. It provides for the property of American citizens who may reside in Nicaragua. It secures the right of holding lands in that State, and secures the right of holding lands in that State, and American citizens may become land-holders there—a right which will induce American colonization, which will rapidly follow the conclusion of the

Lord Elgin, on behalf of Grent Britain, and Baron
Gros, on behalf of France, have been for some months in China. As these two nations are to co-perate actively in hos ilities against the Chine e, there must be, of course, a more complete and intimate in derstanding between their plenico-enciaries than between any others. I wo or three days ago the French d clared a blockade of the Canton river, but, reened declared a blockade of the Canton hyperball, as this was done some months ago by the British, the act can hardly be regard d as important. It is understood that Bar in Gros thought is desirable to put him elf in this actitude of hostility, and to expensive the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptomy and all in the same of the broad symptoms and the broad symptoms are same of the same of press in this manner the French sympathy and allince with England, before communicating with Gov. ieh, preparatory to the attack upon Canton. The arrival of 11on. Wm. B. Reed, the American

Minister, more than a mouth ago, has been alrea ly announced. Count Pontiatine, the Russian Ambassador, was the last to arrive. He is here in the warsteamer America, unsupported by any other naval force.

Between all the plenipotentiaries there are the most friendly and agreeable private relations, but, except in the case of the English and French, there has been no concerted action.

It is understood that, at his first interviews with Mr. Reed, Lord Elgin was strongly disposed to insist on American co operation, but that he was met by a constant refusal. A correspondence of a perfectly courleons, but of a very decided character, on both sides, is known to have use at het ween those both sides, is known to have passed between these gentlemen—but it has not yet transpired.

One of Mr. Reed's first acts, after arriving in China, was to write to Yeh, the Governor of Canton, announcing his arrival, requesting an interview, and suggesting that the time had come when a renewal and revision of our treaty with China had a renewal and revision of our treaty with Cnina had become necessary. After waiting for some time for a reply, he wrote again in a manner decidedly more a reply, he wrote again in a manner decidedly more peremptory. Before this second letter could have reached Governor Yeh, there came a reply to the first. The letter was courteons enough, but not altogether satisfactory. Yeh declines to meet our Commissioner, on the ground that he has no place for the meeting, as the British, in their last year's bombardment of Canton destroyed the public buildings, which is a sufficiently valid excuse certainly, for the readers of the Times will not have forgotten the unceremonious visit which Sir Michael Seymonr made to the Governor's pulsee some thirteen months made to the Governor's palace some thirteen months ago; nor the storm of shot and shell which his guns poured into the city for a week or so following. But the Gove nor objects also to the revision of the treaty, on what grounds 1 have not been able to ascertain. Mr. Reed again replied, but his letter was sent only a short time week and it is regulated that sent only a short time agc; and it is probable that before the Governor has time to reply, even if he be neither killed nor captured, the circumstances in which he will find himself will hardly be favorable which he will find himself will hardly be favorable to correspondence.

It is hoped that after the capture of Canton (for that Canton will be captured, with greater or less loss, is regatded by everybody except the Chinese so a matter of course), it is hoped that the Governor may be able to treat, and may be empowered to grant all the privileges which the representatives of the foreign powers may require. It, however, this should not the case, Lord Elgin will probably go northward towards Pekin, supported by as much of the naval force as can be spared from Canton. In the event of the failure of negotiation here, it is the intention also of our minister to go north, in the summer—to Pekin, or as near that city as possible. If mer—to Pekin, or as near that city as possible. If the English should go in a hos ile attitude—as it seems probable they will—the American expedition will certainly be entirely disconnected from theirss the policy of our Government towards China is to egotiate percefully.

Homicide at Duncansville.—On Saturday week, at the village of Duncansville, Mercer county, Mr. E. Million was stabbed and killed by Isaac Mc-Creigh, jr. We have known the deceased for an umber of years, and have always regarded him as a clever, good-hearted, and peaceable man, when not under the influence of liquor. We have no personal acquaintance with Mr. McCreigh, but we know him to be the son of one of the cleverest gentlemen in the county, and we understend that the young man bears a similar reputation. We are assured, moreever, that he acted purely in self defense in his ren-countre with the unfortunate Elzie Million; and as he has not yet been brought to this place under arrest, we presume that he was acquitted by the examining court.—Harrodsburg Transcrip.t

MARRIED.

In Danville, Ky., on Tuesday, the 16th just., by Rev. Dr. E. P. Humphrey, Jos C. S. Blackuurn, Esq., of Woodford county, to Miss Theresa, daughter of Dr. C. Grsham, of Danville.

DIED.

Of typhoid fever, at the residence of her father, in Cooper county, Mo., on Saturday night, the 6th of Febru-ary, Annie E. Mavo, eldest daughter of William II. aud Rebecca P. Mayo, aged 11 years and 11 mon hs.

Dearest Annie, thon hast left us, Here thy loss we deeply feel, But 'tis God' that hath bereft us, He can all our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to meet thee When the day of life is past, Then in heaven with joy to greet thee, Where no farewell tran is cast.

Baltimone, Feb. 20, P. M. Provision market closed flat and prices unchanged.

There is no change whatever to notice in the money market. The provision market was flat on Saturday, and we could not hear of a transaction. The Cincinnati Gazette, of Saturday, says of that market:

There was a feeling in the provision market to-day that bordered clossly on a panic. The backward movement on the part of buyers, referred to yesterday, alarmed holders, who became auxions to realise; but the tendency of buyers and selbers was in the same direction—bounward—and although the latter made liberal concessions, they did not succeed in changing the position of the former. Faces were as firmly set toward lower prices as they were in the opposite direction on Wednesday.

The weakness of the market, however, Is not so great as might be supposed. There is confidence that prices will not rule much below the present currepey, and operators are prepared to go in again as soon as figures go to a point that will leave room for another upward movement.

The advices from Liverpool by the Baltic, received on Change, were quite unfavorable for hog products; but this news was not seriously regarded. It is a response to the most gloomy accounts that went out from here when hogs were at §4 and under.

Advices from New Orleans are awaited with a good deal of anxiety, and the next report from list quarter will exercise a strong influence upon our market.

Thursday's New York Evening Post observes:

Thursday's New York Evening Post observes:

The stock market was again active to-day, and the market closes budyantly for most description.

The Gentral Bank, Urita, we learn, is to be resuscitated. The Atlantic Bank, Portland, Me., is restored to credit at the Suffolk Bank. The circulating notes of the Bank of Royalton, Vt., will be redeemed seon.

Treasury notes are moving more oriskly at better rates. Some considerable parcels are going to the East. Au order is in the market at a limit of 400 $\overline{8}$ $100.

Thursday's New York Evening Express has this

The abundance of money at the discount houses is in no degree abared, and of prime communical signatures there is not, as compared with the same date last year, 10 % cent, made. In the ogdolon of leading houses, 19 % cent is not too large an estimate, The usual supply of manufacturers paper is wanting, melading the large quantity made by jobbing houses. The recent supply of choice paper has been from sales of generies and a few other public cales, all of which were readily placed at low rates. A steady, but slow restoration of business is progressing, but nothing to indicate a supply of paper at the templing rates which for some years have attracted capitalists in that direction.

Other qualities. 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% The cattle on sales to-day were of a rather better average quality, but as the receipts were heavier prices declined Mc on last week's quotations. There were a roof n any premium cattle offered, and many of them ornoght 11%c, and a few as high as 12c. The general selling price was about see the laster rate. About the last lot offered was 13 head from Maryland, which brought $135 head—about equal to 10% $15. The owner seemed very much dissaustied, and said it would have paid him to bave restinged them to Philadelphia. About 350 head sold at Bergen 11%. Cows and calves continue in moderate request at prices quoted above.

Cows and calves continue in moderate request at prices quoted above.

Veal calves are in good demand, and a large number of sales are being made at from 6% (3.7c, and in some cases at higher rates.

Sheep and lambs are coming in moderately, while the market is memanged.

Notice are bringing good prices, and the demand for them a good.
